

Fashion Menswear

The department pursues regeneration and development by constantly adapting to the realities and needs of the designers of the future. We see this as a positive challenge and an inspiration to the work within all our courses. New ideas, materials, methods and design applications are continually originated and progressed by students at all levels.

Remarkable achievements continue to be made in all areas. The courses and specialisms have advanced and developed successfully, enriching the whole School of Fashion & Textiles and achieving professional recognition for its graduates. We are assured of the success of the department through the high international employment profile secured by our graduates who, as they achieve seniority in their own careers, return to the College to recruit young designers. Many of our former students also establish their own businesses in all aspects of design.

Students participate in the organisation of exhibitions generated by the courses, in particular the annual work-in-progress exhibition. A professional practice programme, seminars and guest speakers from the design and related industries support the core curriculum.

Applying

MA Programme

We encourage students to develop their individual vision and design identity. Technical courses relevant to the discipline and specialisms are integral elements to this process. Professional presentation and portfolio development focus on communication skills and the ability to present work coherently. Profile analysis and marketing clarify the students' aspirations through product, positioning and use of the media. Our aim for students is that they fulfil their potential and exert a creative influence on the future of menswear.

Within the discipline there are also four separate areas of design specialisation: knitwear, footwear, accessory design and millinery. Specialism students follow the menswear curriculum and have teaching and technical courses in their specialist area.

A balance between individual expression and the global design context is realised through our excellent links with industry. The participation and support of established designers and manufacturers is a valued and important aspect of our curriculum. Recent projects include: Red Dot, Levi's, United Arrows (Japan), Umbro, Brioni, Manolo Blahnik, Bill Amberg and Missoni. These professional contacts frequently lead to sponsorship, international placements and freelance design work.

The College's end of year Show has a long-standing and prestigious reputation. In order to provide each student with a highly visible public platform, the Fashion Department's Show is delivered five times over two days in June, culminating in a gala evening for international media, potential employers and our sponsors.

MA Entrance Requirements

- We seek to enrol students who are imaginative, self-motivated, determined, passionate about their discipline, technically curious and professionally orientated and who understand that their commitment to the course is a significant investment in their future.

Portfolio

- Recent work including sketchbooks, research and design development.
- All work should be marked with the year it was executed.
- CD-ROMs and slides will be accepted though are not considered to be an ideal way of assessing your work.

A finished toile relating to one of your current portfolio design projects should be included.

- If applying to a specialism, your submission should contain a relevant prototype. Please state 'Fashion • Menswear' and, where appropriate, the area of specialism to which you are applying, clearly in capital letters, both on the application form and on the labels attached to your portfolio.

Interview (if invited)

- You will be required to present a portfolio of work in progress.
- A personal research proposal is also required for discussion at this stage.

Research

Research-degree students are welcomed into the School of Fashion and Textiles, which has expanded its MPhil and PhD numbers and now has a well-established history of successful graduates and leading-edge researchers in the disciplines. Research students have a school-based senior tutor, supervisor and specialist adviser. Research-specific activities form part of a wider pattern of lectures and seminars across the College, enhanced by the extensive relationships we have with world-class academic, museum and industrial institutions. The presence of MPhil and PhD students continue to stimulate the culture of research, creativity, individualism and analysis that benefit the whole of the School of Fashion and Textiles.

Current or Recent Areas of Research include: Styles of masculinity; The structure, tradition and influence of tailoring; Youth sub-cultures and identity; The dandy and democracy.

MPhil/PhD Entrance Requirements

MPhil

- Applicants must normally have obtained a good relevant undergraduate degree or an equivalent qualification.
- Exceptionally, other qualifications may be approved, providing that the Academic Board for Concessions and Discipline (ABCD) is satisfied that the applicant has the ability to pursue the programme of research successfully.
- Applicants should normally be aged over 21 years by 1 September of the proposed year of admission.

PhD

Applicants must have a relevant research Master's degree or an equivalent qualification. The majority of successful applicants are accepted onto the MPhil register in the first instance, with a view to transferring to the PhD register following their first or second year of study.
